

DOGS IN THE HOOD

We trekked over to Withrow Park and caught up with a pack of wet dogs that were enjoying the crisp air on a grey and rainy day. The pups excitedly chased each other around and across the park, paying no attention to the cooler fall temperatures. Tails continuously wagged and barks echoed throughout the park as the group of dogs made the best out of the rainy day.

Event by Ioana Ilza Lerchs
Event code: pe7asb

Rufus is well, a little wet

Leo, what a smile

Moo is happy to meet people

Bella strolls the park

Aloe's having a great time with the ball

Molly looks at us with curiosity

Bently takes a time out

SNAP SNEAKS A PEEK ANDY OLVET

by: Jillinda Greene

In all its history and happenstance, Malvern Collegiate has never been as real a structure as it is through the memories contained within its halls. Passed down through time many professionals who think back and reminisce about 'the good old days.'

For Andy Olvet, a superbly brilliant mind, a lawyer by profession and a raconteur of song, lyric and poetry - Longfellow and Shakespeare to name but two - it is the brilliance of experience, peppered by the honoured teachings of a place in time, a school, an area and its inhabitants that mingle and mix through a continuum of family, friends and community. The knowledge of one, combining with the experience and lifestyles of many. Sitting anywhere in the world, often inspired by his visits to Cuba - a place devoid of economic growth and entrepreneurial enterprise, yet culturally rich - Andy often recalls the class of 1966. They were in many ways a brilliant yet motley crew, thrown together, the only common denominator their personal excellence and their incredible potential. It is with true pride and a love of the whole that Andy expands upon the exceptional values taught and thereby learned in rooms throughout the school.

I am not sure if it is the influence Malvern or his own loving determination, but anywhere Andy is you, as an individual, are included. Regardless of your excellence or inept abilities, this man can gather everyone around to mix, match, determine and enhance the game, or conversation, musical interlude or simply the ability to throw a ball, any ball, tennis, volley, foot or shoot an ice puck. Andy prompts people every day in our community, he does it with grace, encouragement, conviction and sometimes tempts/relaxes you with some food from his magic bag or by a tune or two from his music box. In all ways Andy Olvet from the class of 1966 at Malvern Collegiate gets the job done with honesty, humour, commitment and a love of life.

Email jillinda@jillindagreene.com or contact her at 416-230-3849 to give her your ideas about unique landmarks in our communities and to see your Sneak Peeks in the pages of SNAP in upcoming issues.

PET OF THE MONTH

Zippo

Beaches

ANIMAL HOSPITAL
Open 7 days a week

Dr. Mark Dilworth & Associates

2304 Queen St. East
416.690.4040

Open 7 Days a Week 8am to 10pm
Emergencies Welcome

Give the gift of JOY
this holiday season

JOY OF DANCE
CENTRE & TEACHERS COLLEGE
Joyofdance.ca

Kids and adult private and group lessons

- ✓ Gift Certificates
- ✓ Kids & Teens registrations
- ✓ Wedding packages
- ✓ Couples packages

Take a class and shop afterwards.

Call, surf or in-person.
416-406-3262

